

WidePoint Acquires Protexx

Company Positioned to Rapidly Expand Security Offerings Into Commercial Sector

Wednesday, August 06, 2008

WASHINGTON, D.C., -- WidePoint Corporation (AMEX: WYY), a leading provider of advanced information technology, identity assurance and mobile telecom expense management services, announced today, that it has acquired Protexx, Inc. Protexx, an identity management and information protection company headquartered in Deerfield Beach, Florida, secures data in motion and remote authentication over any network or wireless environment with its patent-pending, competitively differentiated, encryption technology.

Protexx develops and markets encryption software that safely transmits sensitive data and completely protects the identity of both sender and receiver. The company's 2,048 bit-encryption software is believed to be impenetrable by current hacker technology and is designed for use by mobile professionals and public sector service providers in addition to the health care, financial services, and hospitality sectors. The company's proprietary software can be integrated with a biometric positive identification component to assure complete security for transmission of data over the Internet.

WidePoint CEO Steve Komar stated, "The acquisition of Protexx quickly and significantly expands our core security offerings into the commercial sector and broadens our portfolio of services options to our existing base of current federal clients. Of equal importance, Protexx represents a significant step in our goal of bringing to market an all-encompassing "Trusted Identity Network" strategy, providing an umbrella of security and support options that cost-effectively meet the needs of clients across multiple markets and sectors."

Peter Letizia, Protexx president, said "We are excited about working with WidePoint to bring our leading edge proprietary encryption technologies and solutions to our rapidly expanding client base. We are also pleased about the ability to offer WidePoint's end-to-end identity management services and expertise to our customers and target markets."

WidePoint CFO Jim McCubbin added, "We are very pleased to welcome Peter Letizia and his Protexx management team to the WidePoint family. With this transaction, we have expanded our capabilities and opened new market opportunities for our company. The purchase price of approximately $330,000 plus future earnout possibilities contingent upon Protexx achieving certain financial performance levels, allowed us to acquire the intellectual property, customer base and professional talent at Protexx for far below what it would have cost us in investment capital to develop, build and recruit this capability. This acquisition saves us both time to market and money on the expansion of this proprietary product mix. We anticipate this purchase will be accretive to the company in fiscal 2008."

Details regarding the terms of the agreement will be available in WidePoint's Form 8-K filing concerning this transaction with the Securities and Exchange Commission.
