

WidePoint Approved for Listing on the American Stock Exchange Under Symbol WYY

Tuesday, September 19, 2006

Fairfax, VA -- WidePoint Corporation (OTC Bulletin Board: WDPT), a technology-based provider of products and services to the government sector and commercial markets, announced that its stock has been approved for trading on the American Stock Exchange. WidePoint will trade under the new symbol WYY, replacing the symbol WDPT used on the OTC Bulletin Board. The company anticipates trading on the exchange to commence during the week of September 25. This approval is contingent upon the company being in compliance with all applicable listing standards on the date it begins trading on the exchange and may be rescinded if the company is not in compliance with such standards.

Steve Komar, CEO of WidePoint, said, "This is a major milestone for our company. Trading on the American Stock Exchange should provide more credibility and visibility to our company in the worldwide investment community. It should also enhance trading liquidity for WidePoint stock and further transparency of our financial operations for investors and other interested parties as we approach the launch of Homeland Security Presidential Directive No. 12 (HSPD-12)."

WidePoint provides systems engineering and information technology services as well as Public Key Infrastructure (PKI) e-Authentication and credentialing services to the government sector and commercial markets. WidePoint subsidiary Operational Research Consultants, Inc. (ORC) provides federal agencies complete end-to-end solutions for HSPD-12, a presidential mandate establishing the policy for a common identification standard for federal employees and contractors. ORC's identity management and e-Authentication services have received three major U.S. federal government certifications.

With locations in Northern Virginia and near Chicago, WidePoint has strategic partnerships with numerous companies including RSA Security, Siemens, Tumbleweed Communications, nCipher and XTec. WidePoint's profile of customers encompasses U.S. federal government agencies such as the Department of Defense, the Department of Homeland Security, the U.S Treasury Department and the Department of Justice as well as several major U.S. defense contractors and several major pharmaceutical companies.
